VOL. LXXIII.

FOR THE YEAR ENDING

MAY 1, 1860.

"He that has much to do will do something wrong, and of that wrong must suffer the consequences; and if it were possible that he should always act rightly, yet when such numbers are to judge of his conduct, the bad will censure and obstruct him by malevolence, and the good sometimes by mistake."

PREFACE.

THE DIRECTORY for 1859–60 contains 147,325 names, being 7,521 more than it contained last year, when there were but 139,804. Though the collection and printing of these additional names entails a much greater expenditure of both time and money, without any corresponding increase of profit, yet, inasmuch as this increase indicates a greater amount of business and an unusual degree of prosperity, the extra cost has been most cheerfully borne, and would have been if it were double what it is. It will be a sorry day when the annual numbering of the inhabitants of this vast metropolis shall show a check in its yearly growth, or a diminution of its prosperity. Last year, which was the immediate successor of the panic season of 1857, exhibited an actual falling off in the population of the city; but the diminution was apparent rather than real. There were many business firms which had suspended in the preceding Winter or Fall, whose members still made New York their home as much as before, but their names did not appear in the Directory, as their firms were dissolved, or gone into liquidation, while the partners and their clerks lived in the suburbs, waiting for the resumption of their business. A very important change had taken place, too, in one of the largest mechanical interests of the city, that of ship-building, whereby thousands of workmen had been temporarily thrown out of employment, and they and their families had gone where living was cheaper; for New York is no place for idle workmen; the cost of living and the demand for money by the exigencies of daily life are too pressing to admit of idleness, and the mechanic without work must either starve or move. Happily all the dark clouds which lowered about the commercial world have disappeared, and the sun of our prosperity is shining again as brightly as ever. It is only necessary to look at the increased bulk of the Directory, to see that the city has fully recovered from the staggering blow it received in 1857, and is now in its usual condition of prosperous expansion.

Fewer annoyances and hinderances have been experienced this year in the prosecution of our work than have been encountered hitherto, which is the natural result of the lessons of past years, and the perfecting of the machinery by which the business of collecting and arranging the names is effected. But still, there are many more obstacles to be encountered, more crotchety and capricious people to be dealt with and conciliated, than persons having no experience in such affairs could imagine to be possible. Some people from a sheer love of giving trouble will withhold their names altogether, while others, from a spirit of mischief, will give false information to our collectors, and then complain of the very mistakes which they caused, themselves. It would be useless to attempt to give any detailed account of these annoyances, and they would probably only serve to gratify the persons who caused them, by showing how much serious inconvenience they had occasioned. There are a few examples, however, which, in justice to the public, should be given. There are a good many people living in New York under aliases, such as male and female "physicians," actors and actresses, who find it convenient to have a name for the public different from their legal appellations. It is a difficult matter to deal with persons of this class, some of whom insist that only their professional names shall be given, while others insist that both their legal and their professional designations shall be given separately, and others again will have only their legal names. We have uniformly pursued but one course, and that has been to give only the genuine name where it can be ascertained, and making a small charge for inserting the assumed name when it has been desired. But this course has, in one or two cases, subjected us to considerable personal abuse, especially from a certain "Female Physician," who, like many others, appears to labor under the very mistaken idea, that the Directory is published expressly for her convenience, and to afford her a cheap medium for advertising her professional services. But there could not be a greater mistake than to imagine that in a work like this, which is intended for the benefit of the entire community, in which space is so valuable and all superfluous matter so costly, where the utmost economy must be practised to place it within the reach of the great body of the people for whose use it is intended, there can be any room devoted to further individual interests.

We have heretofore explained at some length the details of the process by which the Directory is compiled, and the system upon which it has arrived at its present nearly perfect condition. It will be unnecessary to repeat these details now. The public only demands a comprehensive and accurate work, and we have the satisfaction, in presenting the Directory for 1859–60, to feel conscious that it makes a closer approximation to what is needed than has ever been done before; and a comparison with the prices at which similar works have been sold in other cities will show that this is by far the cheapest that has ever been offered to the public.

Commercial Advertiser, 46 Pine
COMMERCIAL AGENCY, No. 50 State street, Albany, N. Y., WILLIAM J. McKINNEY, Attorney and Counsellor at law, has given his attention for the last three years to the collection of claims and investigating the responsibilities of firms in all parts of the state, and for energy, promptness, and indefatigability in business, can safely say he stands unrivalled in Albany or its vicinity. You have but to ask, to hear the assertion corroborated —rates reasonable on collected claims, no charges whatever on those uncollected. References in Albany: P. V. Fort, James N. Parsons, Hon. John D. Serviss, David Mount, S. M. Shepherd, James Ramsey and Jason Russell.
